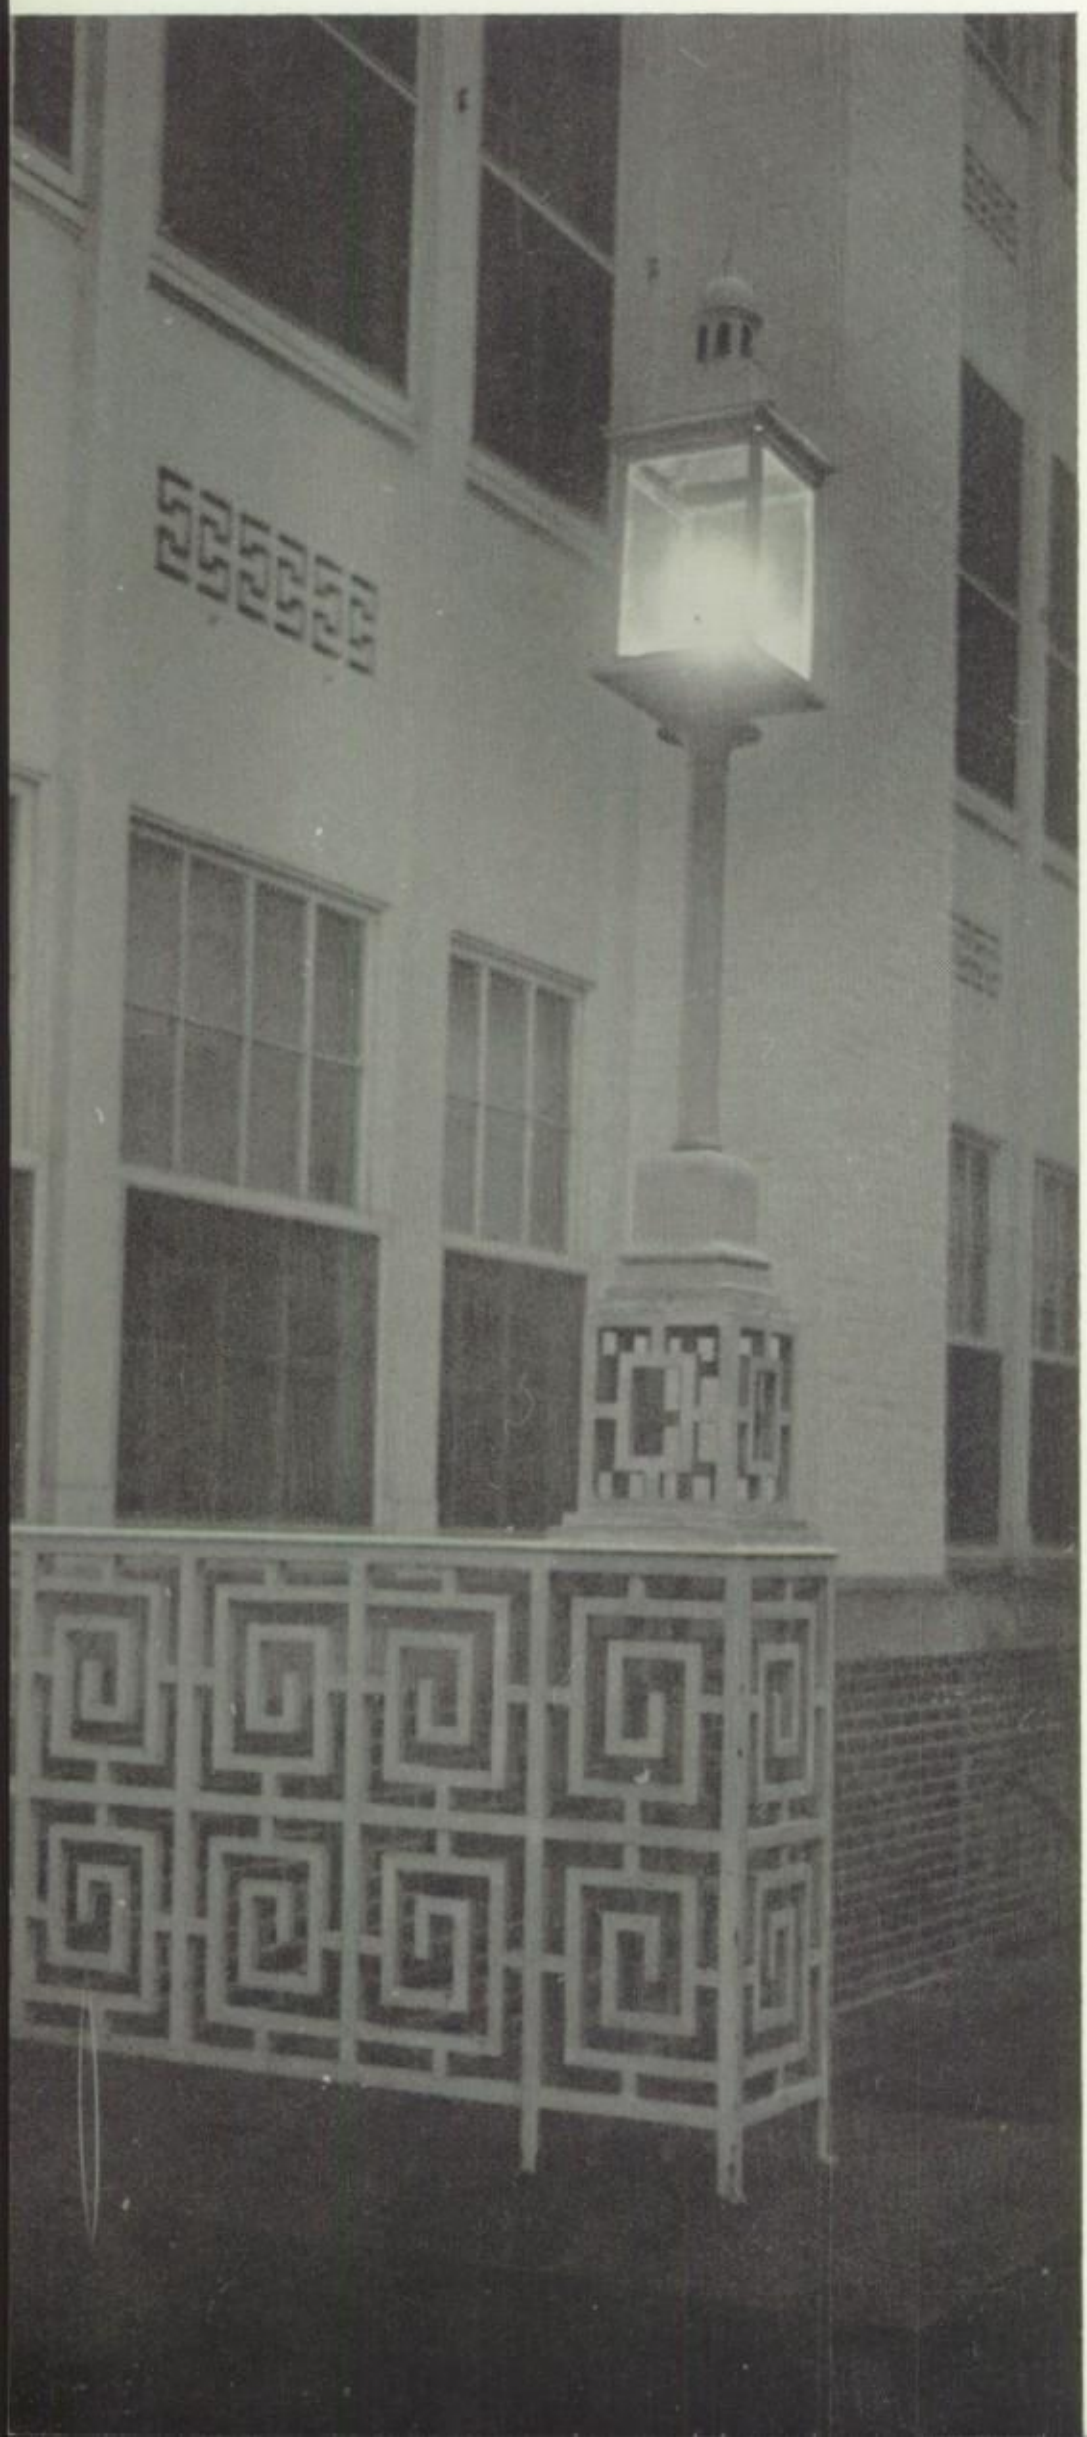
MERCERSBURG

VIA CRUCIS VIA LUCIS

INTEGRITAS VIRILITAS FIDELITAS

the KARUX 1965

Published by the Students of The Mercersburg Academy, Mercersburg, Pa.



Introduction

Instruction in an American preparatory school covers many phases of growth and knowledge. Young men not only probe the mysteries of mathematics and the facts of history, but they learn in dormitories, clubs, and organizations how to live with their fellow-man, how to co-operate in a common effort, and how to lead or be led. They learn on the athletic field the ideals of sportmanship and fair play, meanwhile strengthening and maturing their bodies.

The school—its faculty, its customs, its traditions—sets the guidelines and shows the path which leads to a more perfect acquisition of these qualities. As a lantern guides the way at night, so the lamps and lighted buildings of Mercersburg symbolize the lights of knowledge in all forms.

The school shows the way and the students can truly say with the Psalmist: "Thy word is a lamp unto my feet and a light unto my path."

Dedication to Marian Saville Hamer

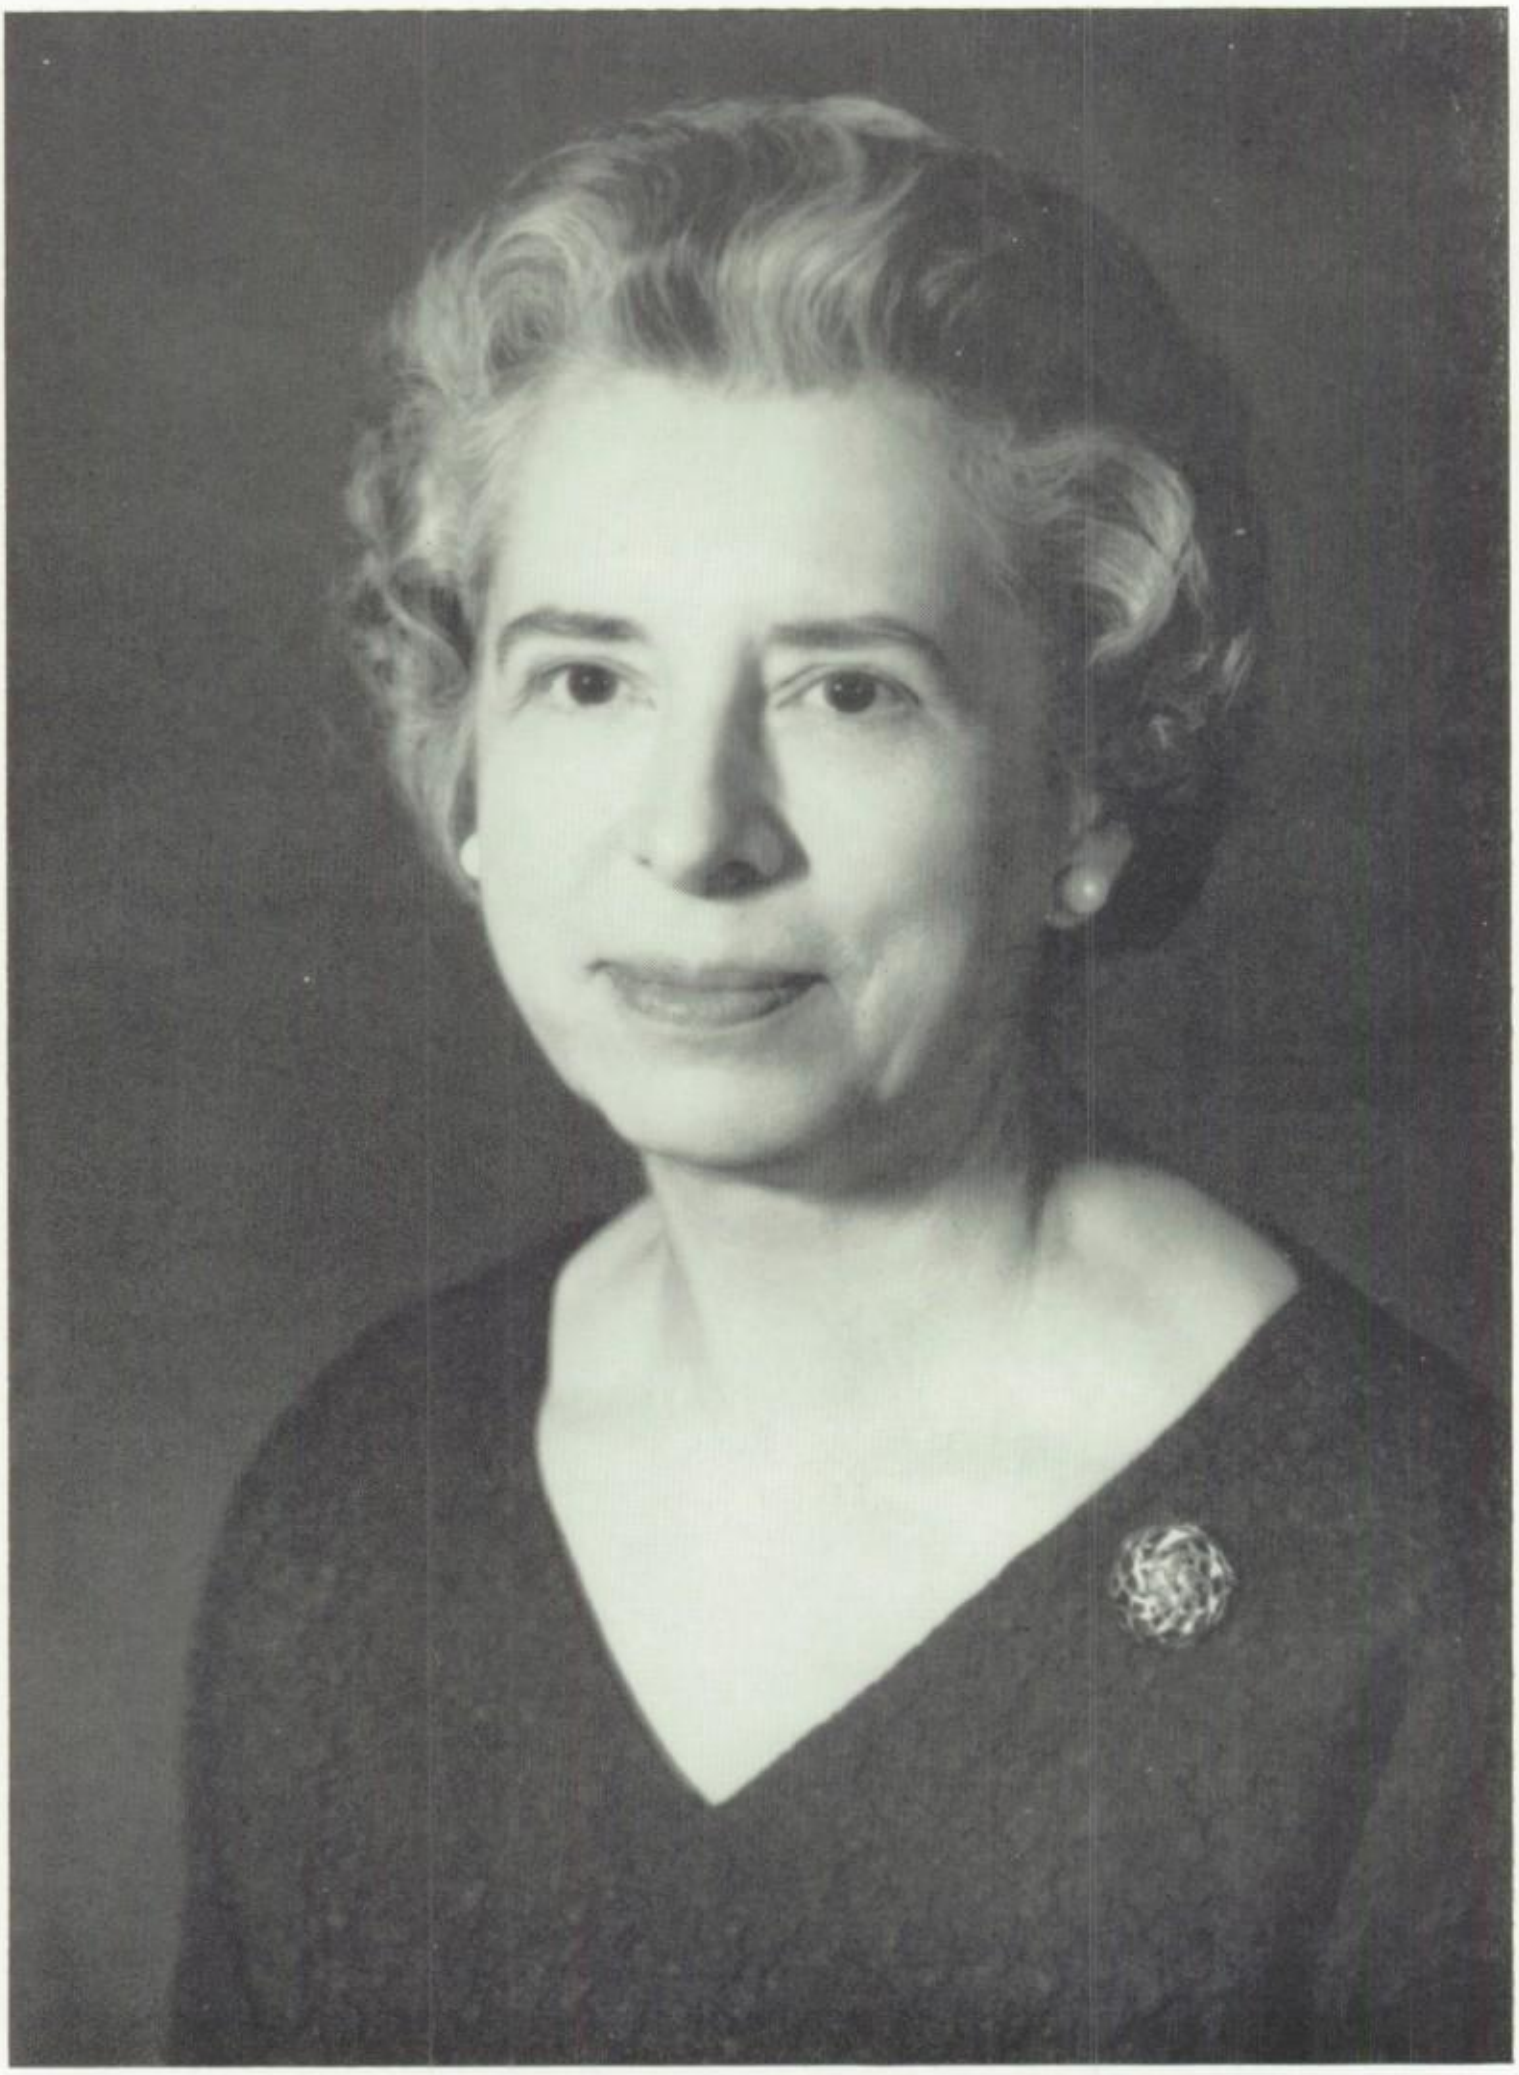
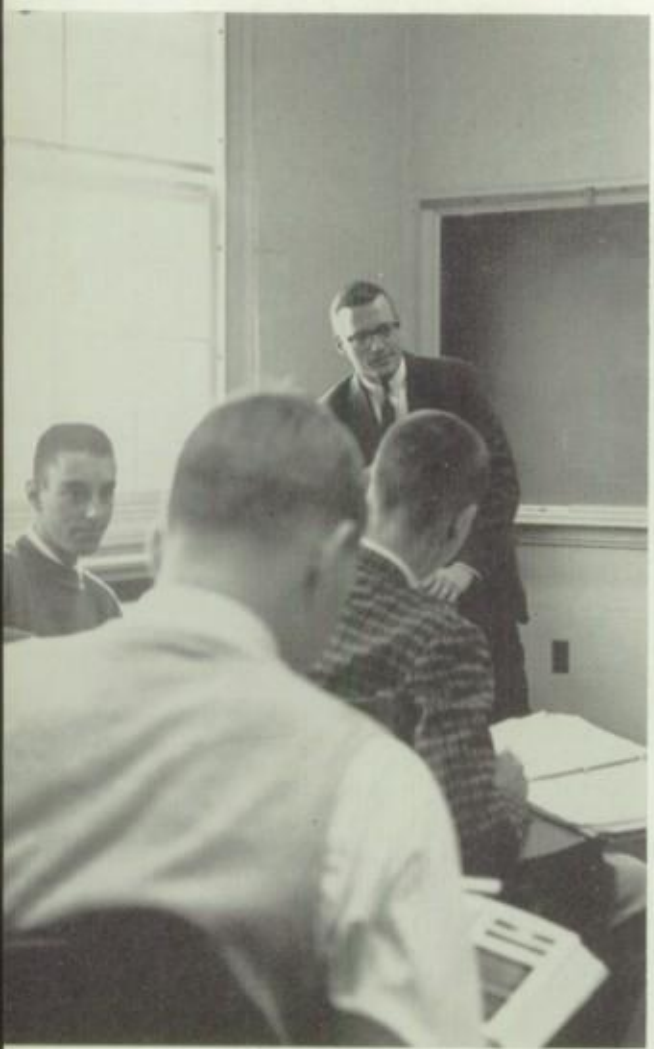
Since 1926 Mrs. George F. Hamer has graced this campus and community with her beauty and charm as the wife of a member of the Mercersburg faculty. Since 1947, when she founded the Department of Developmental Reading, she has used her patience and skill to aid students with problems in reading.

With gratitude and admiration for her skill, patience, beauty, and charm we dedicate to Mrs. Hamer this seventy-second KARUX.

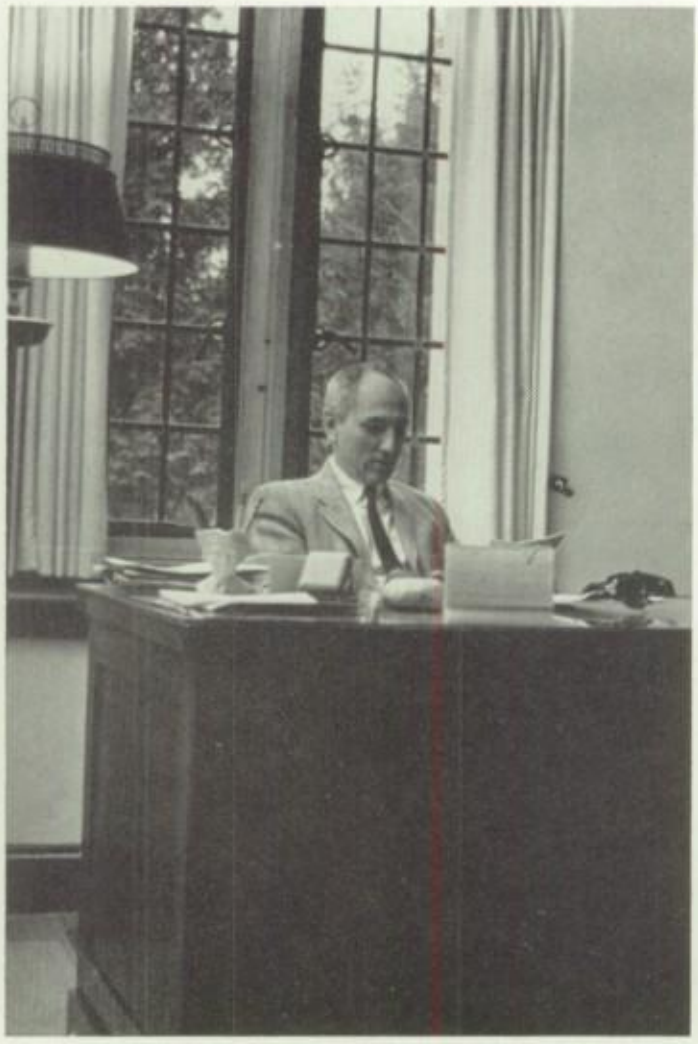
MRS. GEORGE F. HAMER, B. A.
Director of Reading Program
Wellesley
at Mercersburg since 1947



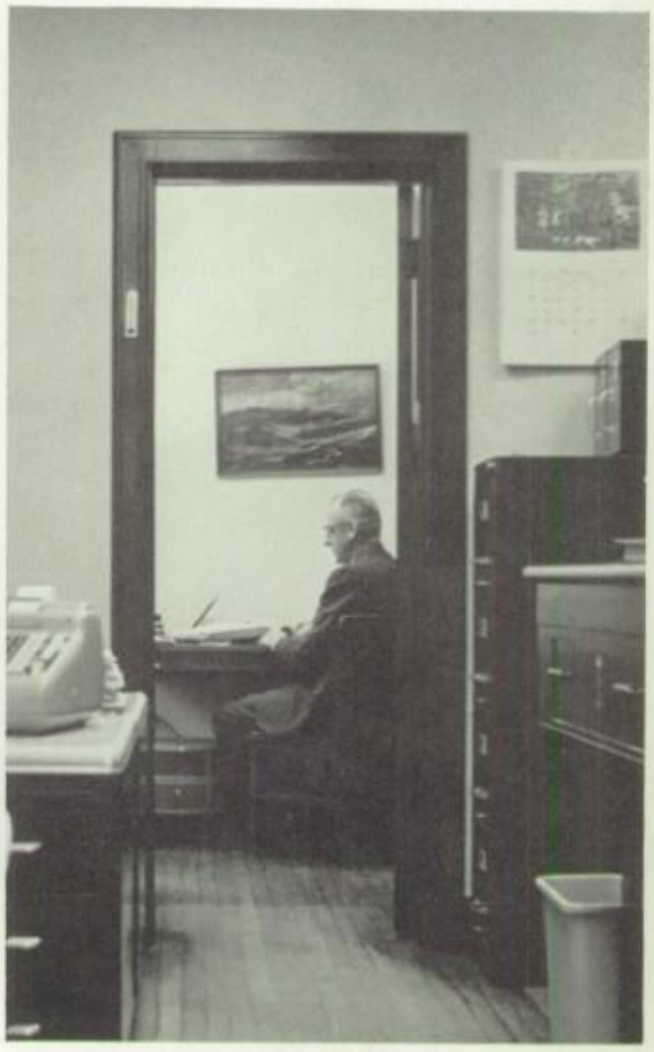
Faculty



Mr. Dolven, assistant headmaster, lectures to budding physicists.



Mr. Staley ponders over the background of a prospective student.

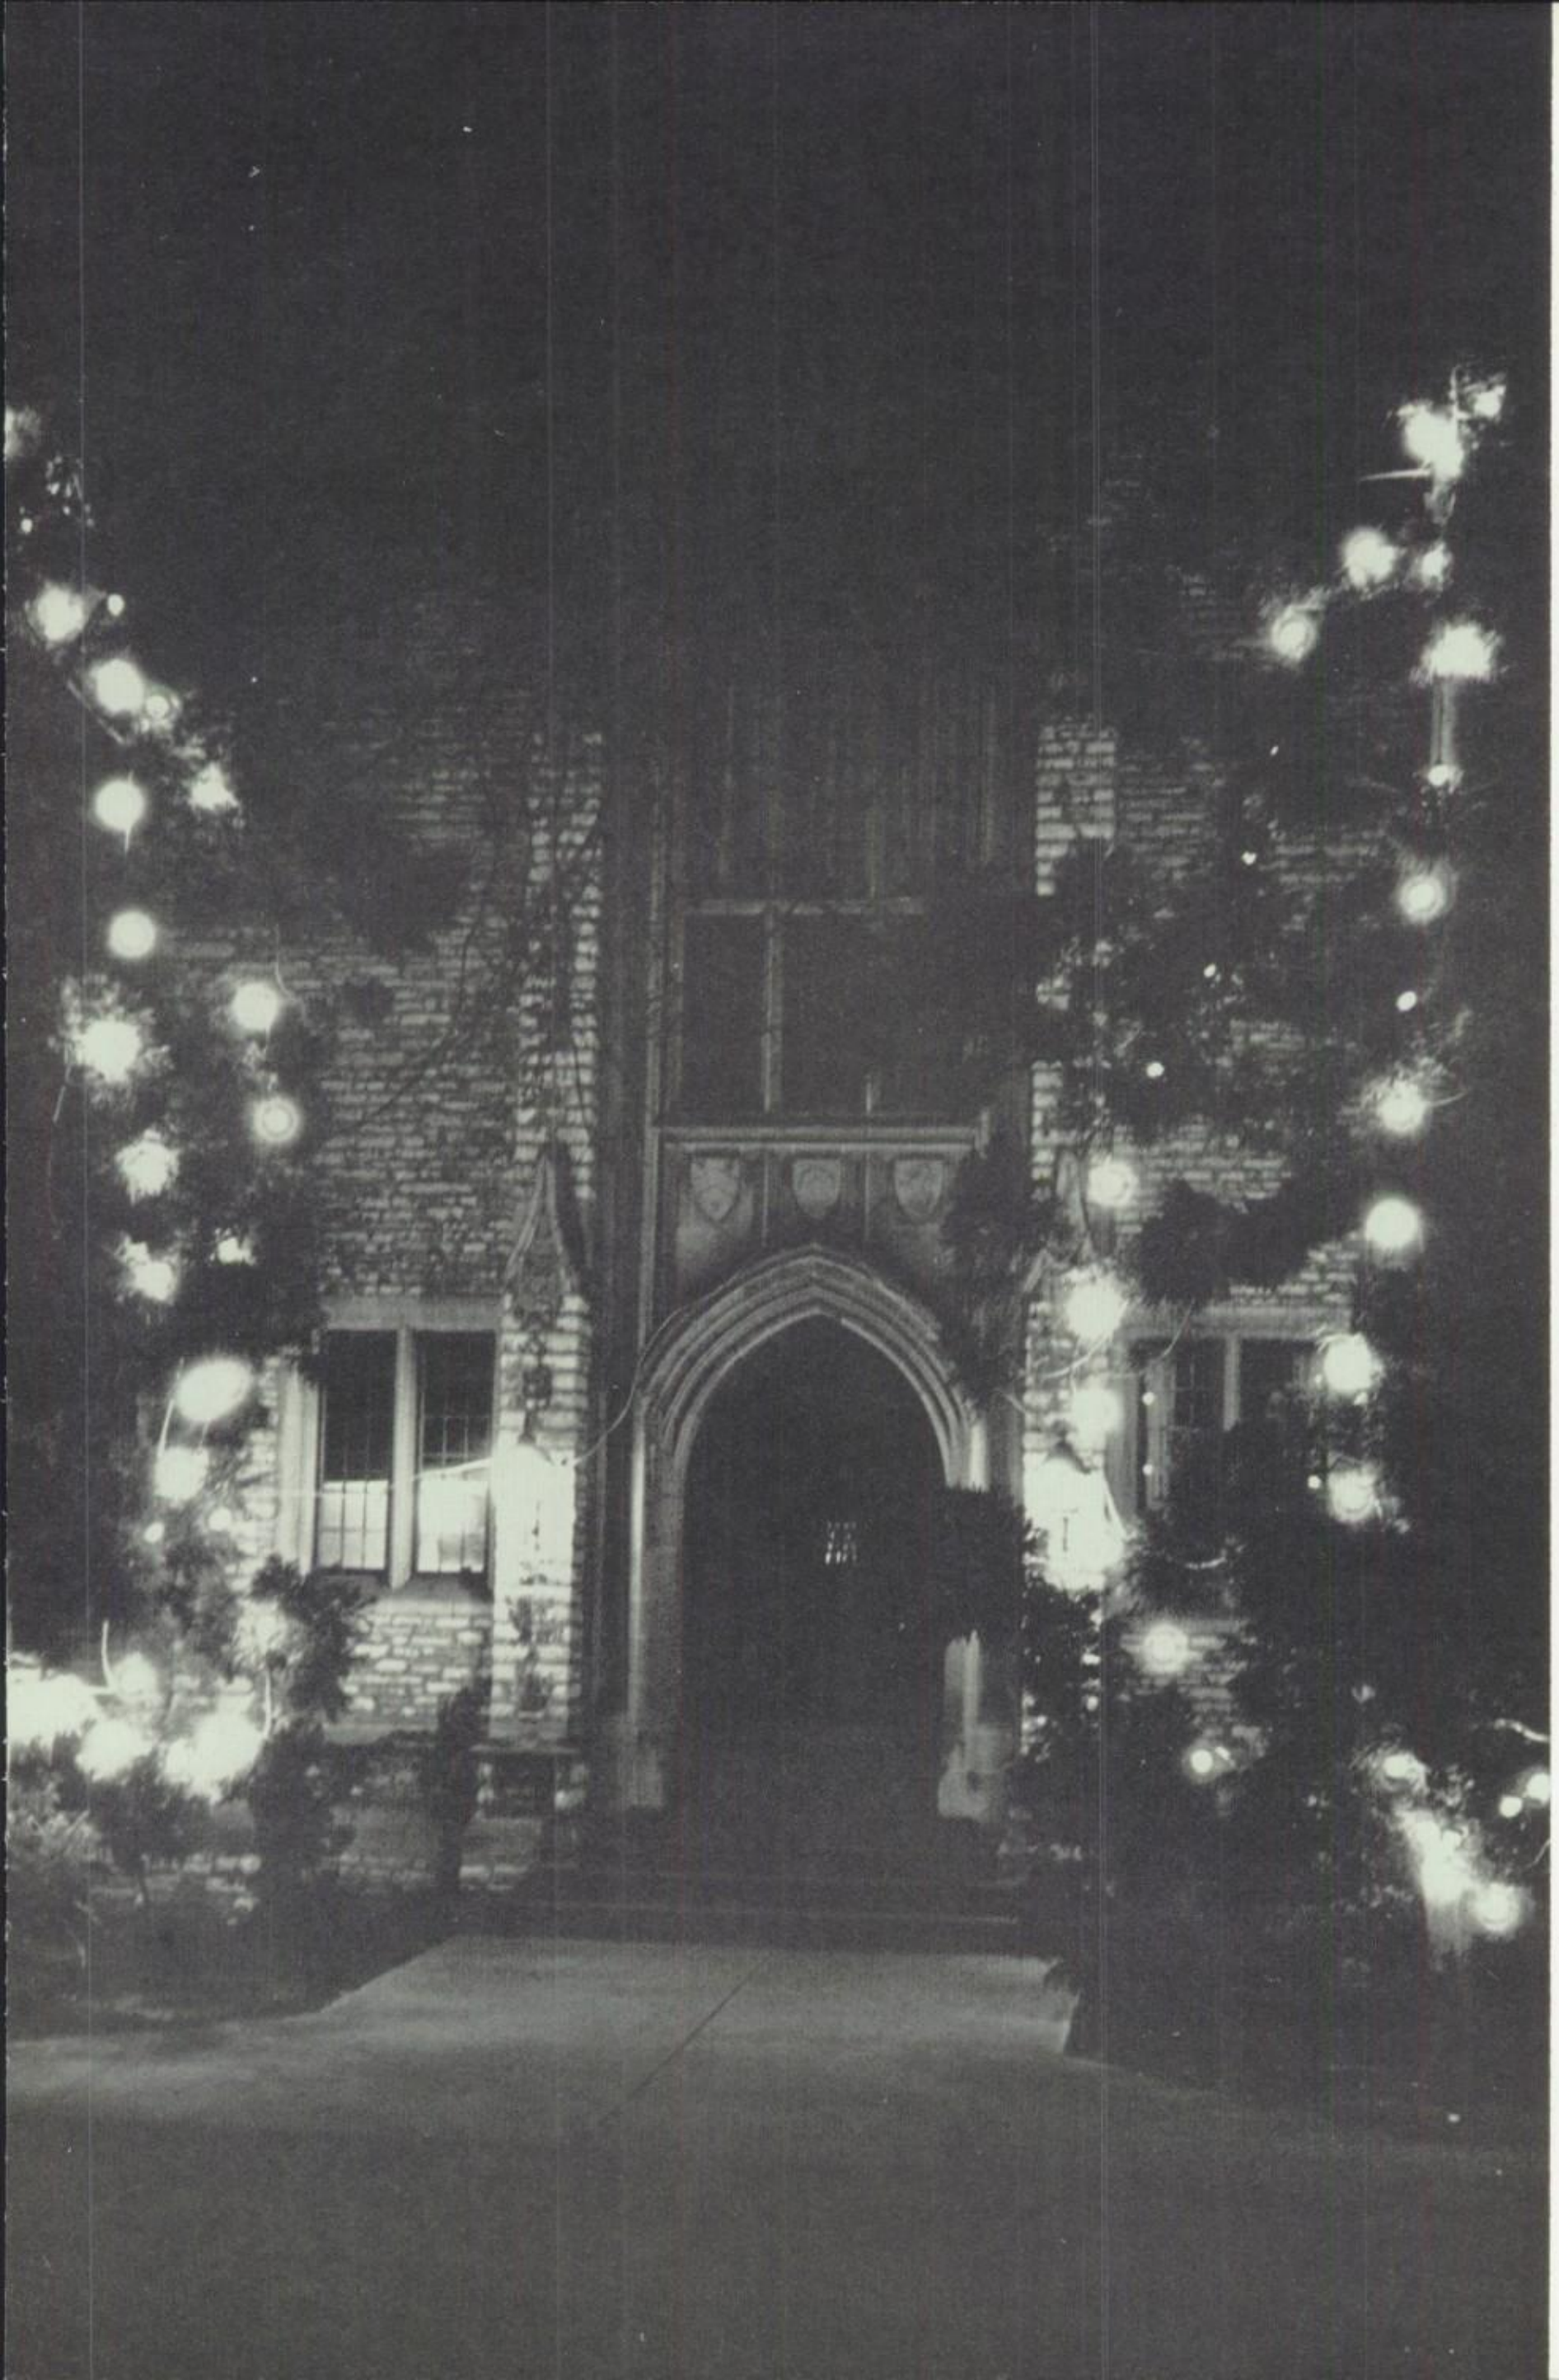


Mr. Landis concludes a financial day through study of the ledger.

From the time a boy is first initiated into the academic environment of Mercersburg until he receives his diploma, final recognition of his achievement, from Mr. Fowle, he is constantly under the influence of the guiding light of the school's dedicated faculty. The torch of knowledge, shining on the path, leads the student on his way. Their guidance enrich and enlighten the character of the Mercersburg boy and strengthen his responsibility for whatever career he chooses.

From the administrative offices—the headmaster, the assistant headmaster, the dean, and others—the student receives careful thought and attention for all his problems. From his classroom teachers he receives knowledge and challenge for thought. From his coaches he receives training in physical activity and the elements of fair play.

In short, from all the faculty, by example and by precept, come the "words" and examples which are a light unto the student's feet.



Headmaster

William Cowper Fowle,
A.B., M.A., Litt. D.

Born Chicago, Ill.; A.B. Williams 1932; M.A. Columbia 1937; Litt.D. (h.c.) Catawba College 1962; taught and coached at Governor Dummer Academy 1933-1935; Williams College 1935-1938, Hotchkiss School 1938-1961; physical director 1938-1952, master in history 1941-1956, master in Bible 1946-1961, admissions officer 1952-1957, assistant headmaster 1955-1961, director of admissions 1958-1961; served in U.S. Navy, Officer of Strategic Services 1944-1946; at Mercersburg since 1961.

Assistant Headmaster

Richard Joel Dolven,
B.S., B.D.

RICHARD JOEL DOLVEN, B.S., B.D.; Physics and Chemistry; Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Yale Divinity School, Yale Graduate School (for Geology); Field Geologist for Stanolind Oil Co., Nevada; Freshman Counsellor at Yale University, 1955-1956; Hamden Hall Country Day School, 1956-1957; Milford, Conn., High School, 1958; Hackley Preparatory School, 1958-1963; at Mercersburg since 1963.

Mr. Dalgleish, who teaches both the beauties of English and Mathematics, here discusses exponents with two young men in Math III classification.

The various English sections, which cover a variety of courses in literature and Grammar, present reading lists ranging from Elizabethan to modern authors. Mr. Bursk discusses the list.

Monsieur Robert Smith sets beginners on their way in French I and later catches up with their progress in French III.

Under the instruction of Mr. Raymond Bair students learn German and Russian. Here the subject matter is intricate Russian grammar.

La Carte de France interests these eager students in Monsieur John Duvall's second-year French class. Perhaps the subject matter is a trip to France.

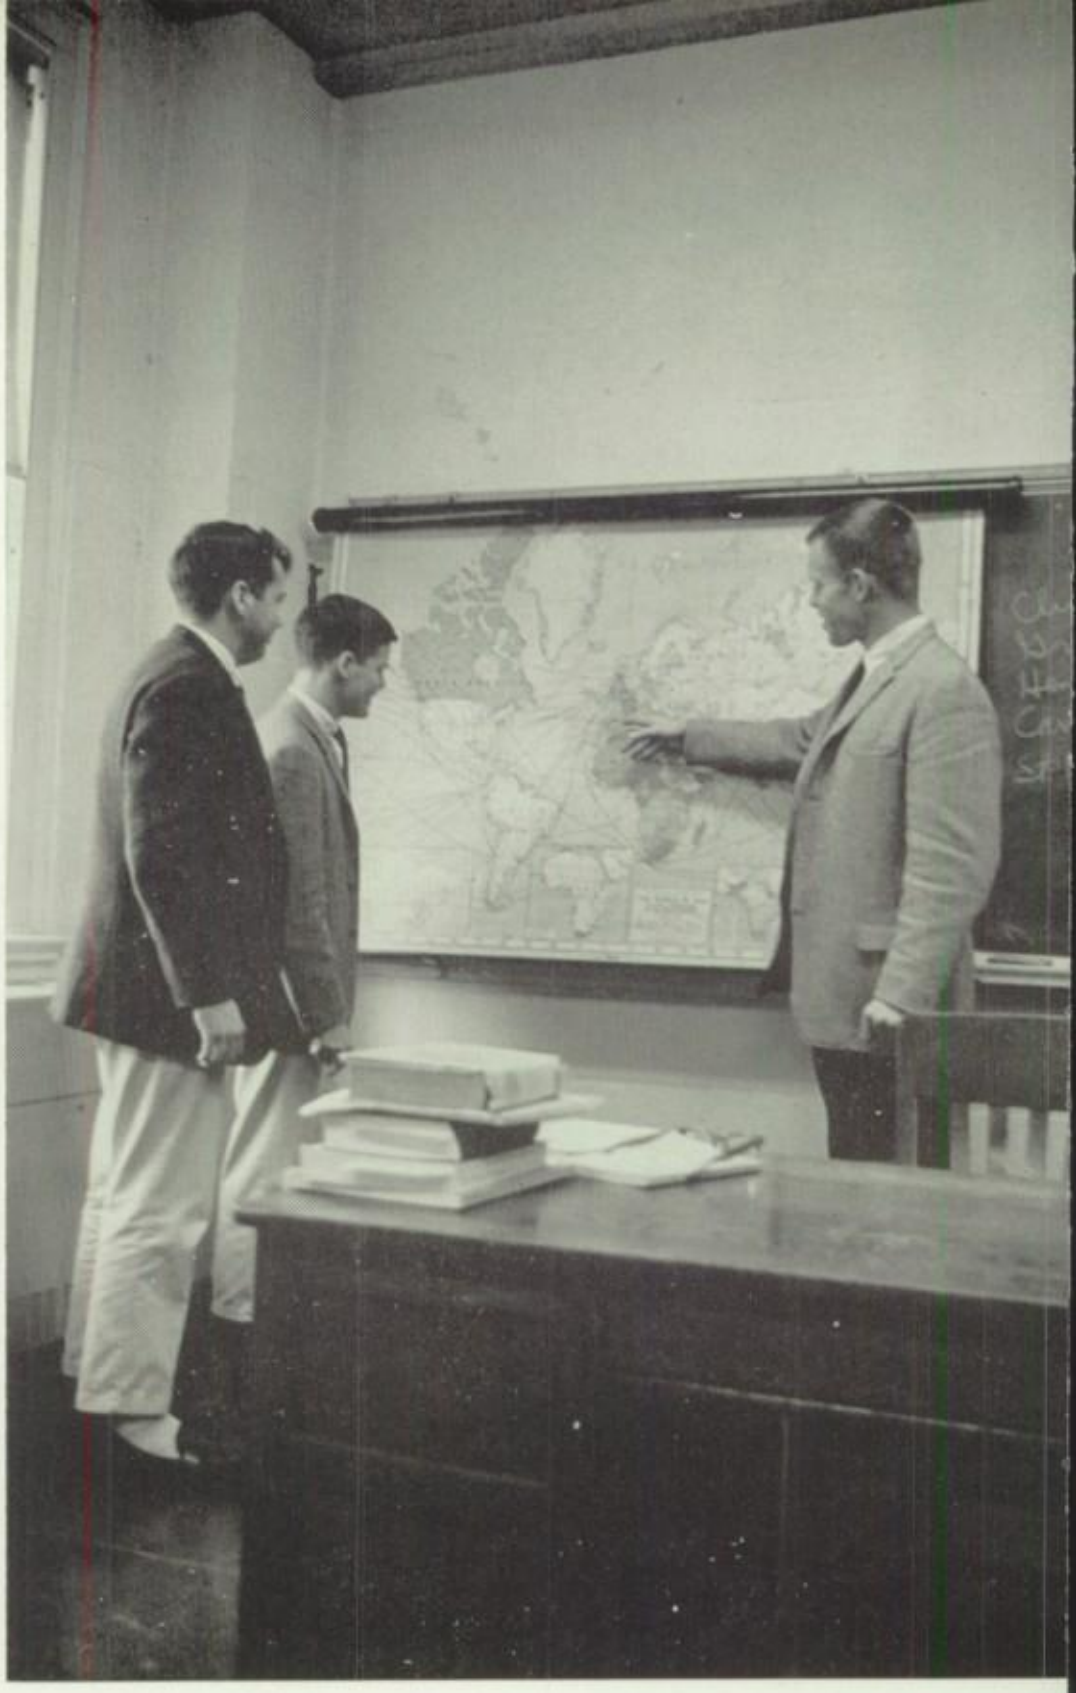
History courses at Mercersburg offer the students a fine understanding of the ancient, medieval, and modern world. Mr. Kittredge checks a point of historic interest for medieval students.



Modern European history offers ample study of events and philosophies from the sixteenth to twentieth centuries. Mr. Wallace points to a place of historic interest for his students.

Mr. Robert Rankin, head of the history department, awaits questions from his Modern European students after elaborating on an important interpretation of an historic event.

"Kuhnie" Retires After Many Years

When school opened in September, a familiar face and figure were not a part of the campus scene. At the end of the 1963-64 session Coach Frederick Kuhn's physical condition made it necessary for him to give up active work at Mercersburg—to rest and seek repair of his health. "Kuhnie" had been unwell during the spring, and it seemed wise for him to retire several years before the scheduled time.

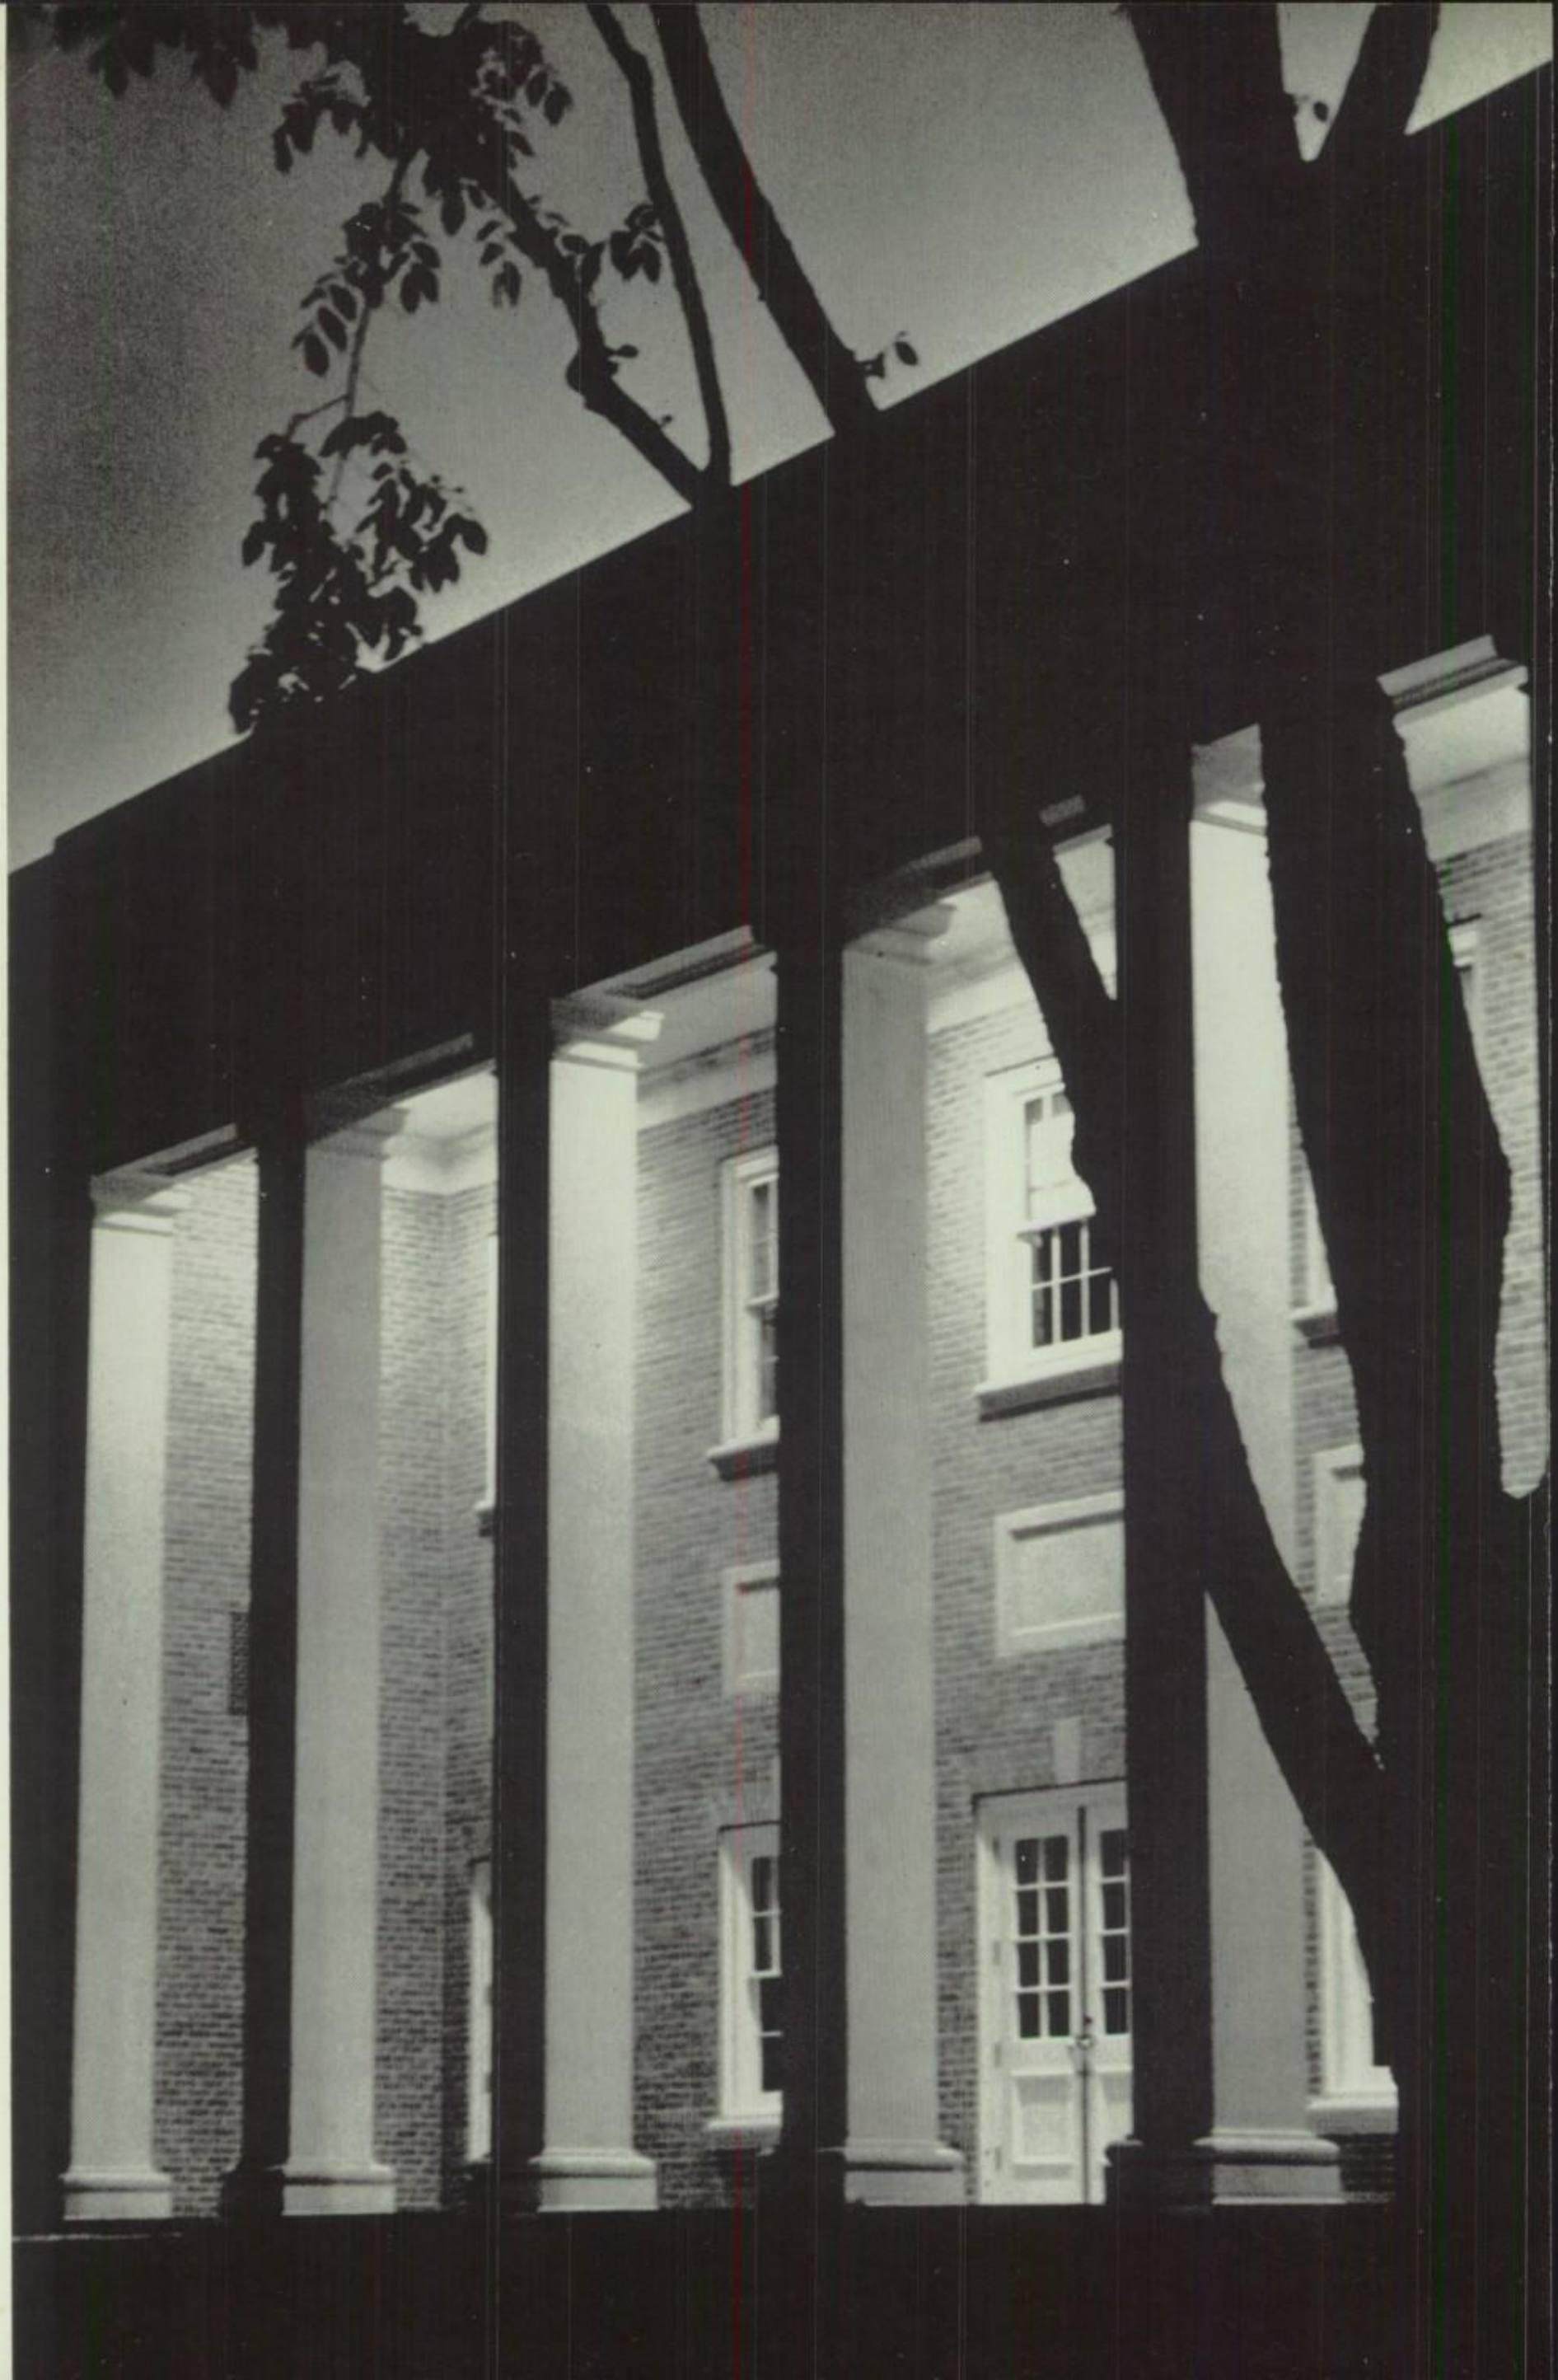
A graduate of Springfield College in Massachusetts, Fred Kuhn came to Mercersburg in the fall of 1931 to coach and to teach history. He was head coach of baseball and assisted with football. Shortly he gave up teaching and devoted his entire career to the physical training department. He has during the past thirty-three years given his entire thought and attention to the service of young men at the academy.

A year or two after his arrival "Kuhnie" was charged with responsibility for the wrestling program and continued that activity and coaching of baseball until his departure. During the Second World War he served as head coach of football and for a time as director of athletics. Thus his experience in the physical education department covered wide areas.

It was in wrestling and baseball, however, that Fred Kuhn made his greatest contribution. He was ever a popular master and coach, and his old wrestling and baseball charges will regret his leaving the faculty, for they affectionately remember their association with him.

"Kuhnie's" hiking groups will long remember their adventures on the Conococheague or in spelunking. In fact, one of the caverns near Mercersburg eventually by student popular consent became known as "Kuhnie's cave." A camper and a woodsman, he reminds Mercersburg boys of many adventures.

"Kuhnie" was great fun—a lovable character. He has served Mercersburg well. He will be missed.



School Life

Chairman E. E. Harris of science department collates club notes.

Outside the classroom, the pride of accomplishment is attained through Mercersburg's vast selection of extra-curricular activities. The light of broader knowledge of one's fellow-man also shines here. There are opportunities to gather new information in practically every field.

Occasions to learn more about possible careers in engineering, medicine, and law are given by the Engineering Club, the Caducean Club, and the Jurisprudence Society. The strategist may enhance his ability through the Chess Club. Fencing and lacrosse enthusiasts get opportunities to indulge these interests; gunners are given the chance to exercise their trigger fingers on Saturday Gun Club meets; philatelists may satisfy their curiosity through the discussions and displays of the Stamp and Coin Club.

Photographers, radio buffs, and electricians may also occupy themselves in the darkroom, exploring the intricacies of a tuner, or working on an old T.V.

Service organizations give opportunities to boys who desire to help the school by joining such honorable activities as the Blue Key, the Orientation Committee, the Chapel Ushers, the Entertainment Ushers, and Student Government.

Leading the student government, the Senate presides over student council action and presents new ideas to the administration for the student body. Membership in this group is one of the highest honors a boy can receive. This year's senators were, first row, from left: Mr. Schellenberger, G. Garrison (vice-president), Jewett (president), J. Music

Chapel organist and choirmaster plays a tuneful prelude.

Members of Assembly Band practice during after school hours.

Mr. Suerken directs the marching band at a football game.

Music in many forms illuminates the path a boy follows during his development at Mercersburg. Boys with an ability and love for singing may join the Chapel Choir from which radiates sounds of splendor and glory during all services. Boys interested in harmony with humor rather than hymns can join the academy glee club which provides exceptional performances whether on tour or at home. The football and concert bands provide the instrumentalist with an opportunity to further his abilities in the orchestral field. In like manner the assembly band permits a musician to mix melody and wit while providing the student body with a welcome diversion during assemblies. As one can easily see, the light of musical opportunity forever shines at Mercersburg.

Publications

The writing staff of the News diligently prepares next issue.

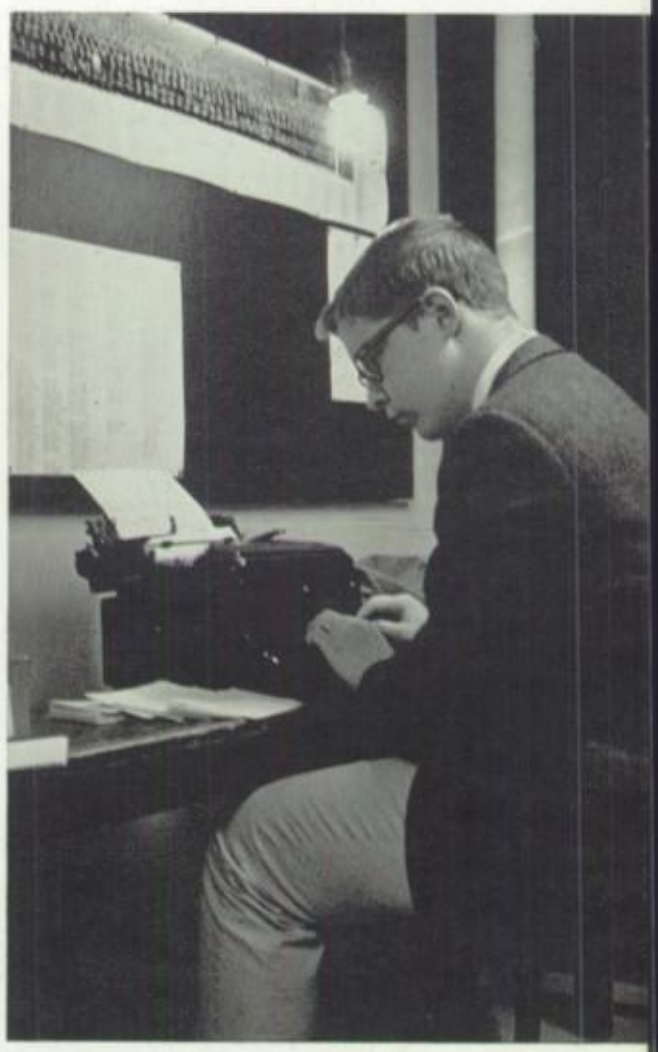
Attentive scorekeepers closely observe play of basketball squad.



The Press Club sends Home-town newspaners news of the students.

The light of creativity is manifest most clearly in the Academy's many publications. Students interested in the field of journalism gain invaluable experience through hard work and devotion to their literary organizations. The steady glow from the news room is visible both day and night. Here on Saturday mornings and weekday afternoons the KARUX board meets to compile and assemble material for this school's yearbook. At most other times the news room provides a working area for the staff of The Mercersburg News, the prize-winning weekly diary of school activity.

The Lit, published several times during the school year, is composed of poems, essays, and articles written by students. The light of literary creation shines in the pages of this magazine. The Mercersburg View rounds out the list of student-prepared publications. This "sheet" produces student thoughts on world problems.

For those who merit hometown publicity the Press Club sends news releases on their activities. They also send the scores of athletic events to metropolitan papers.

Permeating all phases of publication work at Mercersburg is the light of friendly guidance and the challenge of opportunity for successful learning in the publications world.

The News excels because of its striving for perfection. Proofreaders work to correct all rough draft errors, as the value of the press rests with these boys.

News Tells Students of School Events

Members of the business board of the News fold school newspapers and send them all over the world. These copies of the News are sent to parents and relatives to keep them abreast of school events.

The Mercersburg News is the school's prize winning newspaper which comes out weekly during the school year. Members of the News board are responsible for submitting articles and write-ups concerning newsworthy events occurring on the school campus. The Writing Staff of this year's News included, first row, from left: G. Garrison, Greenberg, Adair, J. Hook, House, J. Warden, L. Thompson, Gerson. Second row: Biggi, McIlroy, Dunlap, Brownell, Kellman, VerStandig, T. Way. Third row: Rial, Crandall, Freedman, S. Warden, Dresher, J. R. Davis, D. Students Put Out a Variety of Publications

Mr. Smith, faculty adviser to the Press Club, ably records the results of a swim meet as J. R. Davis observes the times of the three leading swimmers.

The Lit Board discusses the next issue of the Lit with the help of its adviser, Mr. Schellenberger.

The Mercersburg View, a political opinion paper, is being prepared by its staff.

KARUX Records

School Memories for Boys

Bob Stauffer under watchful eye of Greg Allen carefully checks subscription list for Karux.

Karux editors and advisers study dummy book in preparation for important lay-out decision.

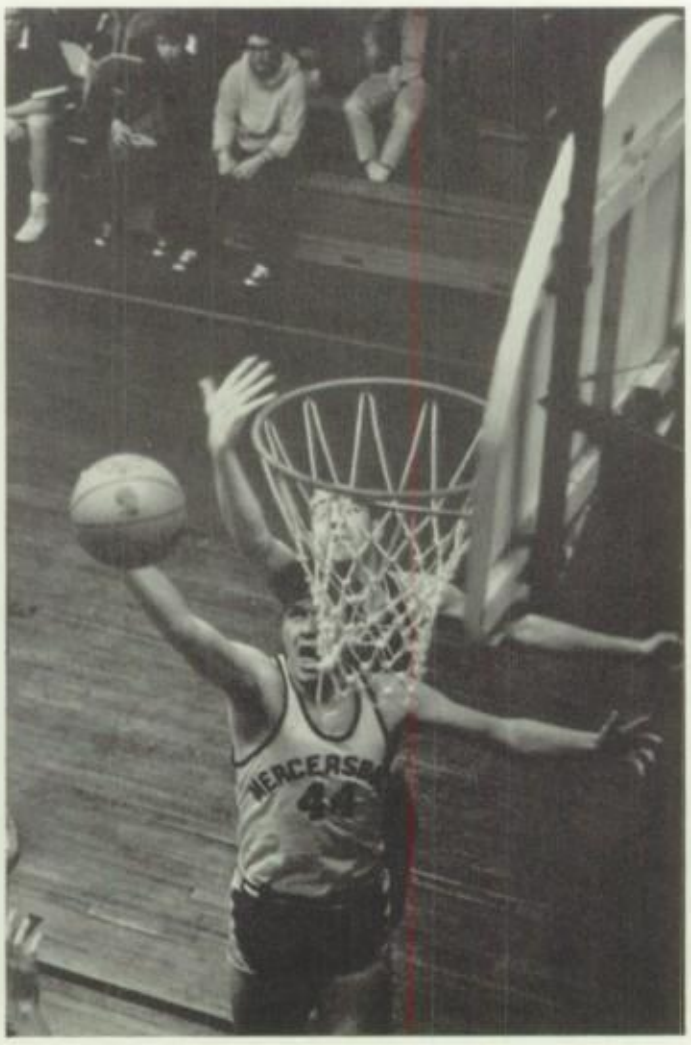
The members of the Karux staff discuss this year's memory book with the publisher, Mr. Brown, and the faculty consultant, Mr. Black.

The job of this year's first-rank KARUX Board was to present an accurate picture record of school-life as a memento of student life at Mercersburg. The members this year were, first row, from left: Greenberg, Grimm, G. Allen, Stauffer, Hatcher, Rush, McIlroy, Hipple. Second row: Mallory, Dorer, Masters, Bupp, H. Miller, L. Thompson, Rial. Third row: Gordon, Schamp, G. Tawes, J. Tawes, Kreeger, Wyatt.

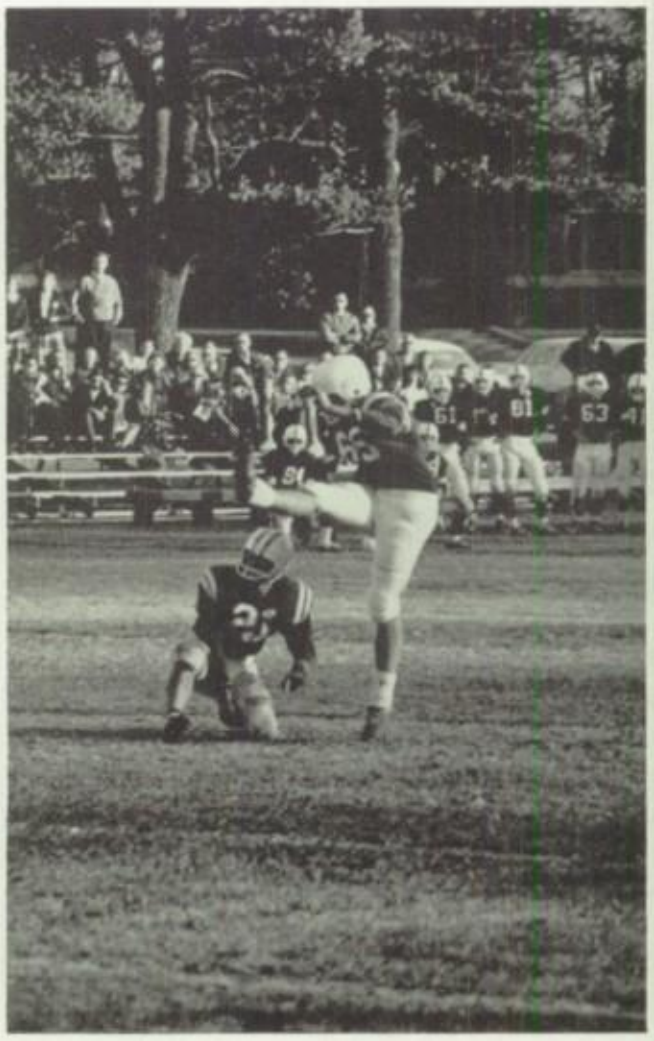
Co-editor Stauffer (standing) tries to sell his point in a layout argument but determined adviser doesn't want to concede. Unconcerned business manager looks on thoughtfully.

Athletics

Wearied Cross Country runners near finish of grueling Kiski meet.



Good spirit and teamwork provide an easy basket in hard game.



Field goal specialist tries for extra point after Academy score.

The broad athletic program and the devoted coaches at Mercersburg provide a boy with the light of desire to strive for physical improvement.

The colorful fall days reveal the pageant of football—its speed, precision, excitement, and dynamic power. The scene on the leaf-strewn varsity soccer field reveals a team of extreme coordination and exceptional skill.

Days grow shorter but the light of athletic guidance does not diminish in the winter term. Simultaneously one can hear the swish of the basketball spinning through the net, the unrelenting pounding of feet on the indoor track.

With the advent of pleasant spring days, the opportunity for participation in athletics increases. The crack of the bat and the cry of the umpire characterize the swift action to be found on the baseball diamond. The academy golf team leads a nomadic life, and the lacrosse enthusiasts run through the rigors of a grueling sport.

Through such physical exercise Mercersburg offers to boys the facilities of the gymnasium and playing field with the accompanying light of challenge and opportunity which contributes greatly to the important formula for a good life—a sound mind in a sound body.

Through the fine efforts of the Cheerleaders who encouraged enthusiasm at all home athletic events, school spirit rose to new heights this year. The 1965 group included, seated: Blumenthal. Second row: Hazelton, Schildecker, J. Guttman. Third row: Hamburg, J. Garrison, Butts (head cheerleader), Gropper, Feld.

Sports Card Varies

Any Varsity letter recipient has the option to join Mercersburg's Varsity Club. This organization operates the refreshment stand, encourages athletic participation, awards trophies to outstanding athletes, and provides varsity lettermen with sweaters. The officers representing this group were: from left: McCombs (treasurer), W. Peterson (vice president), Himes (president), Mr. Plantz.

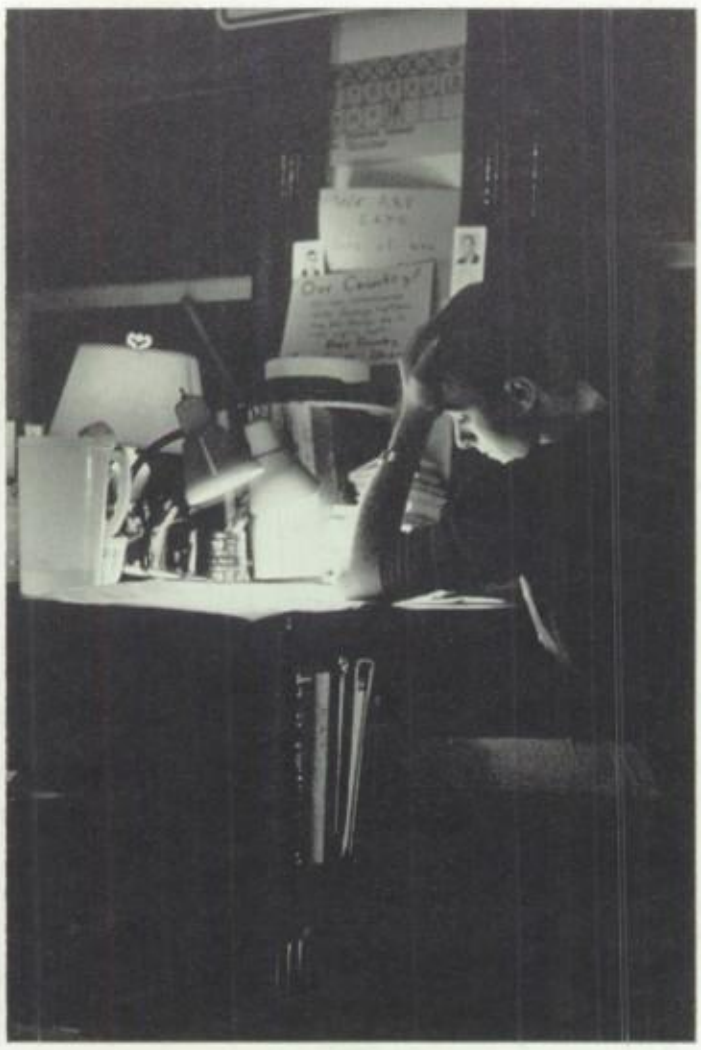
The lighted porch of South Cottage glows on a winter night.



A Mercersburg senior studies at his desk late into the night.

New boys build bonfire during the Field Day exercises.

The gleaming light of knowledge and character which permeates the Mercersburg student's career grows stronger and stronger as he approaches the zenith in his preparatory school life, his senior year.

A Junior, ninth grader, is immediately confronted with the fact that he has to persevere through three years more of work. The "light" seems far away to him. Perhaps he is discouraged for a while. Eventually, however, he becomes an integral part of school life and begins to take advantage of Mercersburg's opportunities.

When he becomes a Lower Middler, a boy is fairly well adjusted to his Mercersburg environment. Here he begins to orient himself and to begin to take a part in activities, clubs, and social affairs.

An Upper Middler, now almost a Senior, contributes greatly to the memories which will reach a climax in another year. His sufficient advance in school years permits him to participate more freely in activities. He will, however, never forget the agony he suffered, studying for finals in chemistry and Modern European History.

Once a boy has overcome the problems of four years, he is able to look back upon many wonderful achievements and experiences—dances at Penn Hall and Grier, athletic victories, graduation, and college acceptance. Surely, in a Senior's mind the light of memory shines brighter than ever.

Senior Class History

Give me an M, give me an E,R,C,E,R,S,-B,U,R,G. We first gave this cheer as Upper Juniors in the fall of 1961. Now, we the class of 1965, give it the last time as students in bidding farewell to Mercersburg Academy.

As we march to the podium to receive our coveted diplomas, we can not fail to reflect upon our last four years. The Class of '65 becomes part of the tradition of this academy which dates back to 1836.

We can recall our Upper Junior year, the days of black ties and socks, the pain of Field Day, the cramming for bi-weeklies, the excitement of making new friends, and the longing desire to get that first year behind us. We slowly adjusted to the pressure of competing with our peers and living away from home for the first time. We learned about guard. We heard some mention about class rank and SAT's, totally unaware of their importance. We wondered why we had Friday evening study hall, why we lost our desserts, and why we had so few privileges and so little freedom. The answer was always . . . tradition. These new experiences seemed both frightening and ridiculous.

We were becoming part of the tradition in our Lower Middle year. A major construction program was unveiled. Annex was to be turned into a dorm with a new name, Swank Hall, Old Laucks was to be razed. Boone Hall, the new auditorium, was taking shape. This was the year we lost Penny Sunday.

Our Upper Middler year was the most important year we were to spend at Mercersburg. We were striving for rank in our class and we took omnipotent SAT's. Most of us were beginning to think of college choices, as reports filtered back that admission to college was getting more difficult. Movies, lectures, dances, and even exams took place in Boone Hall. How did we ever get along without it? Mr. Fowle and the faculty, seeking to improve the curriculum, gave us the five-course system and the rotating schedule. This increased the work load but gave us greater opportunity for learning. This was also the year the Honor System was proposed.

Then we were Seniors. We returned to find ashtrayless common rooms, for the school had prohibited smoking. We can remember our first Friday night downtown and twelve o'clock lights. The Honor System was accepted, and has become a part of the school's tradition. Throughout the year, we have eagerly watched the construction of Ford Hall and have anticipated its completion. The school received another large grant from the Ford Foundation to improve more of its facilities.

Midyears seemed to come much faster this year. Applications to colleges were submitted, and the wait for acceptance began. We will always remember the days we crowded into the post office and that one day we received the letter that began, "Congratulations, you have been accepted." Everything suddenly came into focus. At that moment, we realized that the time and money spent had been worthwhile.

Graduation is not the end of the road, for tomorrow we continue the journey in pursuit of knowledge. As the time passes, the Class of '65 will look back upon these years at Mercersburg and think about these "good old days." In time, we shall come to appreciate the patience, the understanding, and the influence of Mr. Fowle, our Headmaster, and the faculty in helping to develop our minds and bodies. Four years ago we were not sure of our coming; now we are not sure of our going. Mercersburg has become a part of us, and we have become a part of the tradition that makes Mercersburg a great school. Class of 1965, give me an M, give me an E. . . .

Advertising

Saturday's afternoon shows attract students as a form of relaxation.

During free time, Academy boys saunter downtown to local hangout.

Local merchants, such as Murphy's, subscribe to KARUX advertising.

Some of the cost of publishing this book has been borne by those who have graciously bought advertising space. To these people we express our thanks.
